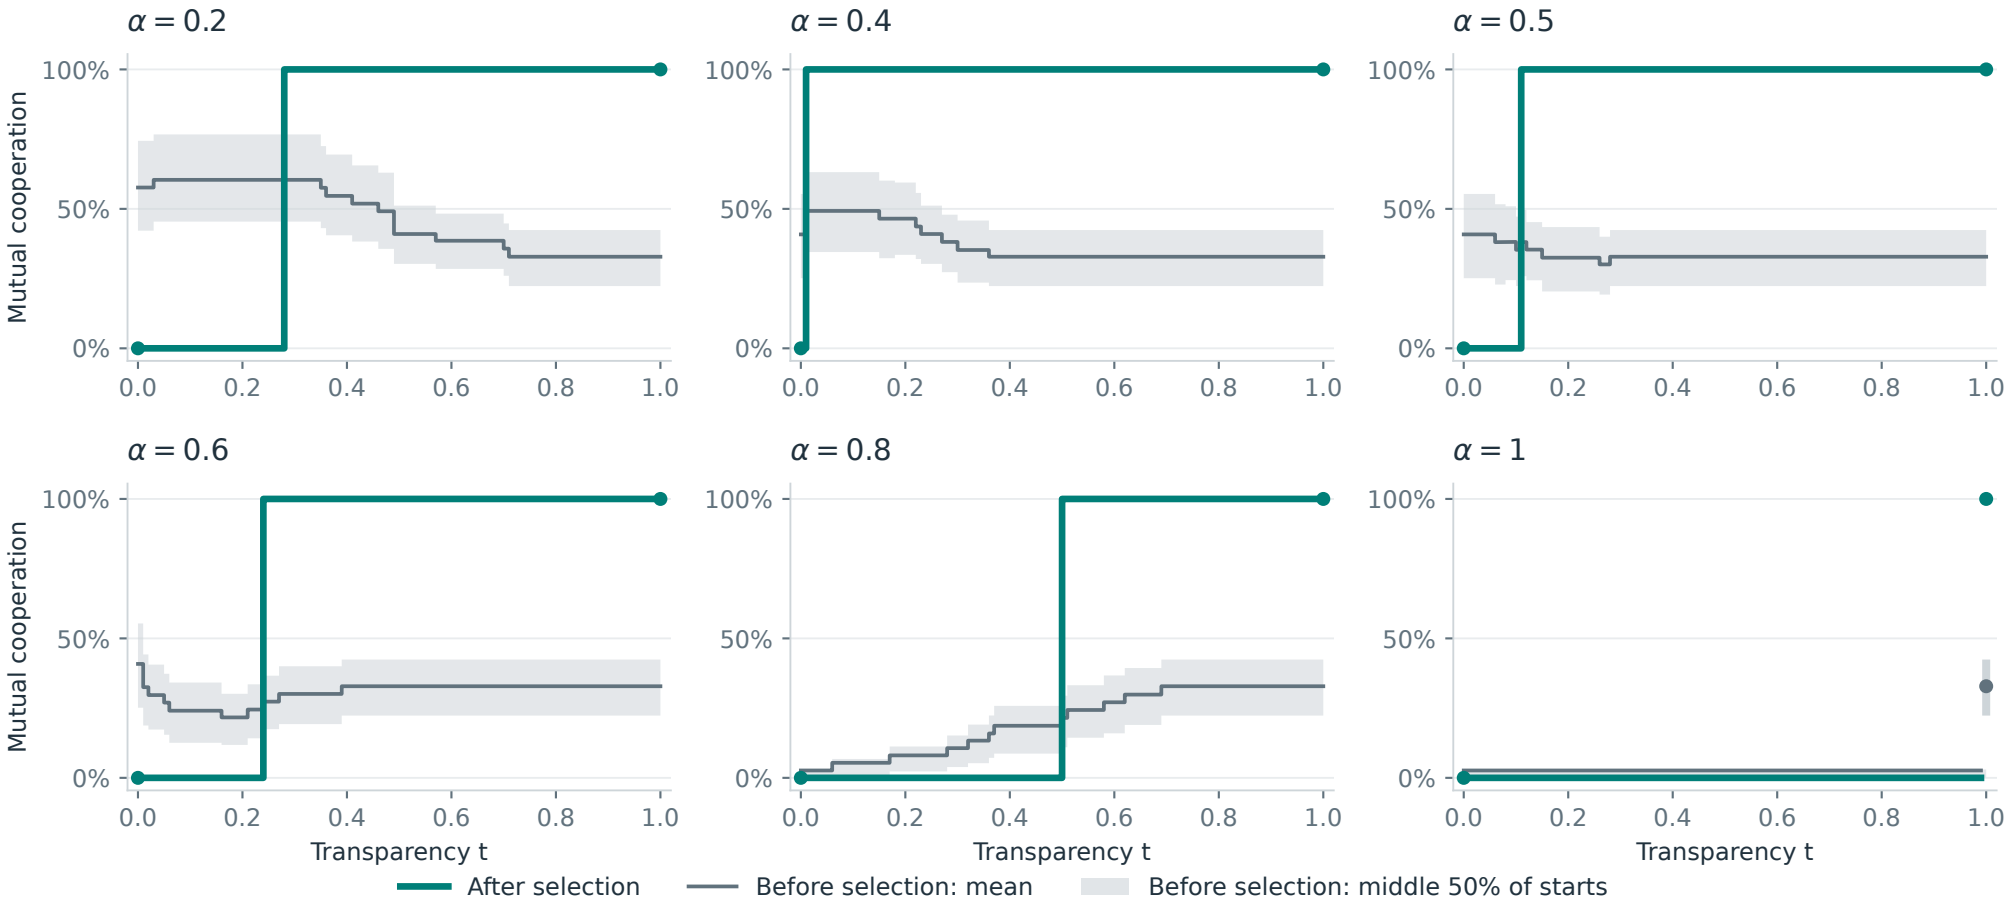
Evolution amplifies the cooperative possibilities of transparency

The same 1,000 initial populations are evaluated before selection and at their converged endpoints.



Each value is $x^\top Cx$, where C marks mutual-cooperation cells. Initial populations are Dirichlet(1).
The gray band describes variation across initial populations, not confidence. Curves connect sampled values.